KBC Networks Expands EMEA Sales Team

London, UK 06 May 2009: KBC Networks is pleased to announce that David Voulgaropoulos has joined their EMEA team. David will be based in France, heading up sales of KBC's transmission equipment within Western Europe and North Africa.

David joins the KBC team with over 10 year's experience within the security and ITS market. He has worked with CCTV, access control and transmission equipment manufacturers including Merit Lilin, KABA and GE Security.

Having previously worked with David, Iain Deuchars, President KBC Networks EMEA, commented, "We're really pleased to have David on board. He knows both us and the market so well, that he's managed to fit into the team easily and be up-to-speed very quickly. With David's help, we have plans to develop our market within Europe and North Africa, and to introduce our networking products range to those customers. We're especially happy to be improving on our levels of customer service for our current and future French speaking customers."

David stated, "It's great to be working with Iain and the team again. They've already made a big impression on the European market with KBC's fibre optic products; it's my task now to build on that success within my new sales region. And with the new range of networking products, and KBC's wireless units being introduced into the region soon, I will have a whole new set of challenges."
